Clarence Gardens

Clarence Gardens is a small, select development based around an informal square and country lane, and is situated immediately south of Portishead town centre along the southern stretch of the High Street. The three wings around the informal square each have a southerly facing aspect and the newly created "street" alongside the existing Clarence Cottage, lends a village atmosphere to the new development. The existing cottage will be refurbished with a garden area enclosed by a stone wall and a new garage on its southern aspect.

Within 400 metres walking distance of local shops and community facilities, there is also a bus stop within 50 metres of the entrance to Clarence Gardens. The new development will feature local stone and render finishes, the sheltered site being screened by mature trees. Earthy hues have been chosen to complement the setting following the character of the conservation area which is the "Portishead Court Farm Environs". In this select development visual privacy to each home has been achieved through building orientation.

Portishead

Clarence Gardens is situated in an area of special historic and architectural character within Portishead and is unusual because of the original location of a working Town Farm in the High Street. The area's close relationship of church and village farms, an indication of the origins of the Portishead settlement, is very much an unusual survivor in towns today. Remnants of the medieval period are thought to be in the line of the High Street, a limited number of 18th and early 19th century buildings have survived including a part of Clarence House. The centrepiece of the conservation area is St Peter's Church. Quite compact, with a short nave and chancel it is a typical example of a Somerset tower of the 15th century.

Clarence Gardens is a beautiful blend of the old and the new. A traditional build of high quality construction with the integration of modern design and new technology. Great design, good location and quality of specification are the hallmarks of a Chatsworth Home.
